TISCIANO

Tisciano

This house still retains the sense of the farmhouse that it was centuries before, despite the drop-dead-gorgeous interiors within. The aromatic gardens lead directly into Reschio's ancient olive grove with forests extending beyond. It is a haven for wildlife. The light and bright spacious interiors lean heavily on 1950's Italian design, while outside you are spoilt for choice with the extensive outdoor lounging areas.

The Reschio Estate

It is a joy to share the wilderness that is and always was, Reschio. For more than a millennium, the land was farmed, leaving spaces for indigenous flowers, forests and wild life to establish their own fiefdoms. Today, more than ever, we continue to honour those traditions and have maintained the ecological balance that means our lakes have pure water for swimming and fishing. Reschio was and will always be a safe, yet wild space that we share with those that come to stay for a week or maybe for years in a house of their own. Reschio, nature's paradise, remains for now and for future generations.

Enjoy a stroll along avenues of cypresses, explore the castle's chapels, savour our orto and taste freshly picked delicacies. Maybe linger in the Equestrian Centre to watch the Spanish horses practising their quick step before dropping in for lunch at Ristorante Alle Scuderie and Bar Centrale. Dive into the estate's lake and have a picnic in the cabin. Challenge the tennis coach at the Astroturf courts. Be tempted to the Reschio Hotel for drinks in the Palm Court or dine in the Ristorante Al Castello at sunset, a magical time when the Etruscan hills reveal their secrets. can be reached at any hour of any day.
